CLEFT REMAINS TO KEEP PARTIES APART IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Main Stumbling-Block Appears to Be Demand That Sudeten Germans Be Given Autonomous Administration of German Districts in All Departments of Public Life

PRAHA, Aug. 17 (P).—The pro-Nazi Sudeten German Party replied to the Czechoslovak Government's plan for solution of the tangled minorities problem tonight with a fifteen-page memorandum, stating there still was "a deep cleft" between the stands of the Government and the party.

At one point the statement said there was an "unbridgeable gap" between the Government's minority proposals and those of the Sudeten German party, representing with the backing of Nazi Germany, most of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Germanic minority.

PREPARED TO DISCUSS
But the statement said also "we are still prepared to discuss how the crisis of the state can be solved on the foundation" of the eight-point demands presented by Konrad Henlein, party leader, April 24.

One of the most important of these points was a demand that the Sudeten Germans be granted autonomous administration of all German districts "in all departments of public life."

This appeared to be the main stumbling block. The Czechoslovak Government considers the state exclusively its own, demanding nationalities such as Germans, Poles, Slovaks and Hungarians be subordinate, while the Sudeten Germans insist upon being recognized expressly as an "equal partner" with the Czech nationalities, having the same political and legal position as they.

CONFIRMS FEARS
The Sudeten memorandum tonight apparently confirmed a fear in political quarters that the mission of the British unofficial mediator, Viscount Runciman, now in his third week, had failed to bring closer together the Berlin-backed Sudetens and the Czechoslovak Government.

Responsible political quarters in Praha were inclined to take a rosy view of the memorandum despite its uncompromising tone, basing their outlook on the fact the Sudetens had opened the door to future negotiations.

NOTE OF OPTIMISM
A note of optimism also was reflected in a Government communication issued after the meeting.

"In general," said the communication, "the view was expressed that there would be a joint basis regarding fundamental terms. Negotiations will be continued."

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE BY HAIL

Sweeps Through Rich Crop Districts in Alberta With Costly Results

CALGARY, Aug. 17 (P).—Crop-debilitating hail cul a wide swath through farmlands in the Calgary district late today. Damage was estimated at from 10 to 50 per cent.

Accompanied by a torrential rain and an electrical storm, roadways were covered with an inch of hail two hours after the storm first struck. Power lines were down and minor property damage was reported.

Shoppers were general over the province during the day, braving another delay to cutting now slightly more than 10 per cent completed in Alberta.

In a half-hour storm, the hail swept across rich crop districts from near Cochrane, twenty-five miles west of here, to ten miles north, near Balzac, and south through Pelly and High River forty miles from Calgary.

The hail, which forced motorists on the main south highway to put on lights, varied from fine particles to stones two inches in diameter.

For two hours, until 8 p.m. all electric lights were out at High River, after a bolt of lightning struck a power circuit.

Veterans Playing in Big Tournament

Here is a trio of veterans competing in the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association snapped on the fourth tee by The Colonist cameraman at the Colwood Golf Club. Their total ages amounts to 231 years. On the left is Dr. J. E. Weeks, noted surgeon, of Portland, the oldest member of the association, who boasts the title of "Colonel" and is eighty-five. In the center is J. G. Gardiner, of Vancouver, and formerly of Toronto, who is eighty-six. The youngest member of this threesome is R. W. Wilbur, of Portland, a former president of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association.

Hart Eliminates Titleholder From Seniors' Tourney

Minister of Finance and Former Champion Scores 3 and 2 Victory Over Bernie Schwengers—Ballinger, Fleeger and Mackay Win—Semi-Finals Will Be Played Today

SHOOTING for his third title in the past four years, Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance in the Pattullo Government, moved into the semi-finals of the grand championship in the sixteenth annual Seniors' Northwest Golf Association tournament yesterday by coming through with a great win over the defending champion, Ernie Schwengers, another Victorian, by a 3 and 2 decision.

Elimination of the titleholder paved the way for a new champion to ascend the throne tomorrow when the two survivors of today's semifinal matches clash in the scheduled eighteen-hole final.

Moving into the semi-final bracket along with the finance minister was T. O. Mackay, another Victorian, and H. A. "Dixie" Fleeger, winner of the card and pencil test on Monday, and J. A. Ballinger, both from Seattle. Fleeger and Ballinger meet today in the upper bracket, and Hart is drawn against Mackay. Both matches will be keenly watched by the veterans, for the odds are in favor of Fleeger and Hart meeting in tomorrow's final.

STEADY GOLF
In eliminating the champion, Hart shot steady golf and took advantage of every opening facing him. The former champion of 1935 and 1936 moved into an early lead and was three up at the sixth hole. He was still in front at the halfway mark, and he continued to play steadily to the finish.

THE witness, George Weinberg, former "business" associate of the chain racketeer, Schultz, described before a hushed courtroom a conference in 1932 at which, he said, plans were made to run the policy racket without too much police interference.

DEBATES CONFERENCE
Weinberg said the conference with Hines took place at Schultz' Manhattan home, 100 West 12th St., New York City.

Province Reserving Authority in Field Of Public Utilities

British Columbia Government Will Present Covering Statute at the Fall Session of the Legislature, Premier States—Municipalities Affected

THE British Columbia Government will proceed with previously announced intentions and will present a definite public utilities bill at the Fall session of the Legislature, Premier Pattullo confirmed yesterday, adding that such measure will supersede all municipal attempts at control in the same field.

While the Premier made no reference to the recent move by the Victoria City Council to legislate department powers conveyed in the Municipal Act to all municipalities to deal with water, light, or telephone services.

Where such services are municipally owned, Provincial action must be secured for by-law proposing to deal with them. Where privately owned, no such consent is necessary, and cities have the general powers conveyed under the covering statute, an examination of the authorities appeared to suggest.

GERMAN CIVILIANS ARE DRAFTED FOR LABOR ON FORTIFICATIONS

Thousands Working All Along Western Frontiers Of the Reich—Network of Defences to Be Tested in Joint Manoeuvres of Reichswehr Regulars and Army Reserves

Great Britain Watchful but Not Alarmed at Conditions

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (P).—Thousands of German civilians are being drafted daily for work on fortifications all along Germany's western frontier with Switzerland, France, Belgium and the Netherlands. Estimates of their number vary between 85,000 and 300,000.

When Germany's army reserves go into action next month, side by side with Reichswehr regulars for the first time since the Great War, one of the joint tasks will be to test Germany's network of fortifications.

The manoeuvres, to be carried out sectionally all over the nation during September, will put between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men in action.

LABOR CONSCRIPTS
Germany has been working for the past few months on her own "Maginot line." While battalions of labor service conscripts have been moved from Northern Germany to help.

Field Marshal Goering, on June 23, issued a decree under which civilians could be required to abandon their regular jobs temporarily to engage in tasks deemed essential for the welfare of the nation.

The following is an example of how the labor has been conscripted: A certain West End hotel was bought by the Hitler Youth Organization to be rebuilt according to the organization's needs.

USE FOR WATER
The question of what to do with the hotel waters arose. The solution was simple—such men as were physically fit were shipped to Trier, Prussia, without anyone telling them why. The men knew they must help build fortifications.

The manpower plan for Western Germany are said to be based on Continued on Page 2, Column 3

HEAT PERSISTS ACROSS BORDER

Number of Deaths Reported Due to Abnormal Weather in United States

Sticky heat clung to the United States, East and South, last Wednesday night, and the only relief came as to when real relief would come was Autumn.

Exasperated Easterners were promised showers and thunderstorms overnight and today, but that meant only a two-hour breathing spell.

New York City recorded its twenty-fourth consecutive day of temperatures that rose above 80. After Tuesday's high of 91, yesterday's top of 91 looked better on the thermometer. That was about all that could be said for it, however, as the humidity climbed to 91.

NO EXACT COUNT
A number of deaths were reported over the affected area, but the exact count was lacking.

The heat wave entered its fourth day in the South. In the Middle West it was cooler.

There were hundreds of street showers for New York children after a sit-down strike by one tenant district group and their parents. The sit-down blocked traffic until police intervened and permitted a street hydrant to be turned on.

Filmmen at Durham, N.C., said it was too hot for film to be used. Virginia State Prison officials protested life was more bearable in the convicts' cells than their offices.

At Perry, N.Y., a factory hand, Gus Finch, stood in a big pool of ice-water as he worked.

UP-ISLAND FIRE COMPLETELY OUT

Heavy Rain Smothers Last of Flames—Forbidden Plateau Trail Is Reopened

COURTENAY, Aug. 17 (P).—Heavy rain last night smothered all remaining smoldering spots of the fire that broke out on the Forbidden Plateau, which last week swept over 100,000 acres of timber near this city.

All fire-fighting crews have been paid off, fire-fighting equipment taken out of the woods and former refugees again established in their homes. Only the regular British Columbia Government forestry patrol remains on duty.

This Northern Vancouver Island district is a scene of activity with logging companies busily rebuilding burned bridges. The trail to Forbidden Plateau, an area of virgin timber threatened for a time by the blaze, has been opened.

Committee Asked To Make Report On Alicante Raid

TOULOUSE, France, Aug. 17 (P).—The Spanish Government today asked the British committee of investigation of air bombardments of civilian centres to make a report on recent bombings of Alicante, important Mediterranean port of Government Spain. It was the first time the committee had been called to work on either side in Spain.

Roosevelt Is on Way To Canada

EN ROUTE TO KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 17 (P).—President Roosevelt journeyed northward toward Canada tonight to receive a university degree, dedicate a bridge and make two speeches, one while dedicating an international bridge across the St. Lawrence River tomorrow afternoon and the other at Kingston, Ont., where he is to receive a degree from Queen's University.

He will return to the United States late tomorrow.

TO CONFER ON ROAD PROJECT

Members of Highway Commission Will Visit Premier Pattullo Friday

SEATTLE, Aug. 17 (P).—Two members of the newly appointed International Highway Commission planned today to visit Premier T. D. Pattullo, of British Columbia, Friday, to ask his co-operation in immediate appointment of a similar Canadian commission to promote the proposed United States-Alaska road.

The commissioners—Representative Warren G. Magnuson and Donald Macdonald, Fairbanks engineer—met in Magnuson's office and expressed belief there would be no delay in getting commissions representing the two countries to function jointly.

Macdonald said snow conditions depended upon location of the road. "The area east of the Coast Range is arid and the snowfall is not so heavy," he explained. "That condition is true all up the western coast of North America."

THE GOVERNING FACTOR
"That should be the governing factor in routing the road. Whether the road is kept open all the year round would depend, of course, on the amount of traffic."

Magnuson said he learned from aeronautical officials the road, upon completion, probably would be used as a guiding route for airplane travel.

"I think the building of the highway between Hazelton, B.C., and Fairbanks is the most feasible public works project in the whole country," Magnuson said. "The only obstacle to its completion is the technical one of borders."

He and Macdonald agreed the project should be undertaken jointly by the two countries.

North Shore Wins Canadian Football Championship, 6-2

Dominion Honors Come to British Columbia for Third Successive Year—Larsen Nets Both Goals in First-Half Offensive

WINNIPEG, Aug. 17 (P).—The national football title was won tonight by a British Columbia eleven for the third consecutive year. North Shore United from North Vancouver defeated Timmins Dome Mines in the fifth game of the championship series, 6-2, running in four goals in the second half.

First and fourth games of the longest Dominion Football Association "final" in history were tied 1-1 and 2-2. Done took the second 3-1 and the new champions the third 1-0. Johnston National, of Vancouver, won last year and New Westminster Royals in 1936.

The Westerners took their cue from Swede Larsen, paying his first game of the series. The big forward injured in the Western Canada final, with Winnipeg United, scored two first-half goals to give his team a 2-0 lead at the interval and Done equalized. The game produced wide-open running football and thorough playing a crowd of more than 4,500.

After Larsen's tactics the Easterners were forced to forsake defensive play in an effort to win. The move paved the way for four second-half markers by the new champions, who swept through the weakened defense almost at will.

Centre Forward Mike McManus matched Larsen's two-goal performance, while Alex Christie and Trevor Harvey added the others. Alex Cooper and Henry Lane were Timmins' marksmen.

The first half was evenly contested, with Larsen converting two of the few scoring opportunities afforded either club. Done carried

Throngs of Children Enjoy Grand Day at Willows Beach Park

First Annual Free Picnic Organized by Joe North And Alderman W. H. Davies Is Great Success, With Attendance of Over Three Thousand

WITH an estimated attendance of approximately 3,000 children and adults, "Joe North's" first annual free children's picnic, held yesterday afternoon at the Willows Beach Park, was an overwhelming success.

Long sunny hours with crickets chirruping blithely in the bleached grass of the playing field, and little waves dancing invitingly on the nearby sands, rewarded the morning prayers of the two small boys at 424 Hillside Avenue that there would be good weather for the much-looked-forward-to event.

Long before the official opening time at 1 o'clock, families were arriving to pick out a comfortable spot on beach or farther inland to spend the afternoon. And already the grove at the north side of the park was a maze of tables and signs, the latter announcing to ticket holders the happy fact that at such and such a spot free hot dogs, candy, ice cream, "pop" and nuts could be secured. All these were in charge of a corps of volunteer workers who spent a hectic afternoon doling out supplies to eager applicants.

SPORTS PROGRAMME

A fine holiday air prevailed. At one side of the field Ward's Tiny Toy Orchestra from Shawanigan Lake played popular music all afternoon. Nearby was a loudspeaker car from which all manner of interesting and exciting information was distributed, including the announcement of lost children, distributed.

the idea of imaginary attacks on the new fortifications. Technical experts will be on the alert to detect what weaknesses, if any, are disclosed.

BRITISH UNARMED

LONDON, Aug. 17 (AP)—Extension of the German army manoeuvres, involving the time allotted for change in the official British attitude which remains one of watchfulness without alarm.

Vicount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, saw Prime Minister Chamberlain for more than an hour at 10 Downing Street today, then left for his Yorkshire home to rest for a week.

Meanwhile it was reported Insurgent General Franco's reply to the British plan for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain was either a downright refusal or a long series of objections and questions which would render it inoperative.

NO CALL MADE

This report was strengthened when it was learned no call had been made to convene the non-intervention committee which must pass upon both Franco's and the Spanish Government's replies. The Government accepted the British plan.

Should General Franco's reply be unfavorable, it was likely that indirect pressure would be brought to bear, or requests for elucidation of his stand made, before the committee met. If the reply were favorable, the plan could become operative in a comparatively short time after the committee started the necessary machinery.

GERMAN VIEWPOINT

From the German viewpoint the extensive army manoeuvres might be justified on three points:

1. The right of any country to overhaul and inspect its war machine.

2. To maintain Chancellor Hitler's traditional policy of the "big stick" in Europe.

3. To build an efficient army which could be used if an incident arose.

STEADYING INFLUENCE

From the viewpoint of European peace, the manoeuvres have the effect of disturbing the waters, but not causing them to boil. The presence in Prussia of Viscount Runciman has been a steadying influence.

Another may prove to be the slump in share values on the Berlin Stock Exchange, which has been in progress for two or three days, and which may have been caused by internal concern for the financial position of the Reich. This may divert Hitler's eyes from any outside objective he is viewing.

CONSERVATIVES HOLD MEETING

Herbert Anscomb, M.P.P., Addresses Rally of the Sidney Association

More than 150 members of the Sidney Conservative Association crowded the Scott Hall at Sidney last night for the annual session of that body and to listen to a discussion of party policies and national and provincial problems by Island party leaders.

Following brief addresses by Percy Mickleburgh, and his son, Bruce Mickleburgh, representing the Victoria Young Conservatives, Captain MacGregor Macintosh, Conservative M.P.P. for The Islands, gave a talk on forestry and its problems, as well as a comprehensive outline of past Federal investigations into the Japanese immigration situation.

Herbert Anscomb, Conservative member for Victoria, and one of the contenders for Provincial party leadership, addressed the meeting with a report on the recent Federal Conservative convention at Ottawa. He outlined the party's Federal policies, and dealt with the leadership contest which resulted in the choice of Hon. Robert J. Manion to head the Conservative ranks.

Outlining some of the other party planks, Mr. Anscomb discussed exclusion of Orientals, the policy of Government assistance to mining and forestry and the formation of a non-partisan board to deal with unemployment and the shoring up by the Federal Government of unemployed relief as a national issue.

Mr. Anscomb dealt briefly with provincial problems from a business viewpoint, discussing the various problems of different sections from the mountains to the coastline.

PICKS UP BABY

Unable to rouse her husband at first, Mrs. Dashevsky said she picked up two-year-old Harry and rushed to the back door.

Finding it fastened tightly, she ran back to the bedroom screaming to find her husband awake.

"Then we dashed to the front room," said Mrs. Dashevsky, "and opened a window. I tossed the baby out and climbed out after him."

"Then we remembered that we had forgotten Nellie."

Together the couple dashed back into the smoke-filled house. While the father took the three-year-old child from her, the mother pulled her dog from beneath the tiny bed and they ran to safety again.

In regard to the City of Victoria Act and the City of Merritt Act, the committee said: "It cannot obtain from expressing the view that there is no room for extension of legislation of this type. There must be other ways of giving relief in the long run."

The report went on:

"Neither of these acts, however, contains the same vicious principles as the Hairdressers' Act. Amendment Act, of British Columbia. The act gives power to the Hairdressers' Association, whoever they may be, to prescribe minimum prices which its members may charge for various acts of hair-dressing."

While on the subject of aviation the minister stated he appreciated the need of an emergency landing field on the southern end of Vancouver Island, which would enable the planes of the Government-controlled Trans-Canada Air Lines to make safe landings when other fields on the mainland might be obscured by fog or other unfavorable flying conditions.

During his four-day stay in Victoria, Hon. J. G. Gardiner was accompanied by Mrs. Gardiner and their three children. They will proceed East after a short visit in Vancouver.

Fine Addresses Delivered Before Bar Association

Viscount Finlay Discusses Education in Law—
More Intensive Studies of Public Law Urged
By Newark Attorney—Senator Farris
Sees Threats to Justice of Courts

VANCOUVER, Aug. 17.—Viscount Finlay of Nairn suggested tonight to members of the Canadian Bar Association that education in law "be linked up with the unfolding of the long and splendid panorama of human history."

In an address prepared for delivery before the twenty-third annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association, Viscount Finlay, a judge of the British Columbia Supreme Court, touched lightly upon various phases of law study to show how they might be linked with history.

"Law develops life," he said, "and few things can be more interesting to watch than how, as a civilization becomes at once broader and more complex, so law follows it, and, developing from a few simple principles evolved in a simple state of society, can prove equal to all the demands made upon it by the most advanced of civilizations."

CITES NOTED AUTHORITIES

Lord Finlay cited books and addresses by famous British lawyers and judges in developing his theme. He referred to various phases of his profession—terminology and the history of common law, in particular.

One of his quotations, from an address delivered by Lord Bowen in 1884, included the following sentence: "More legal terminology may seem to you a dead thing. Mix history with it and it clothes itself with life. I am astonished when I hear at times the suggestion that our profession must be dull. The truer view would be that our work is inordinately engrossing."

From a book by Professor Dicey, entitled "Law and Opinion in England," he found the contention that various currents of opinion which at various times prevail in national life may be traced in the statute book and in the realm of common law.

DISCUSSES LAW SCHOOLS

Tremendous development of law schools in Canada and England during the past thirty years was no guarantee that law schools were fulfilling their function. Dr. Cecil A. Wright, of University of Toronto, Osgoode Hall, told the meeting.

Dr. Wright, labeling himself as a "law teacher," added, however, it has never been demonstrated "ex-entire world seems to be divided into two classes, one believing that whatever is, is right, the other that whatever is, is wrong. Reason and common sense, as well as the life of the spirit, seem to be in danger of being crushed between the upper and the lower millstones of materialism, so-called, and of material liberalism, so-called.

EFFECT OF INTOLERANCE

"Yet there are many people to whom this philosophy of intolerance is right, the other that whatever is, is wrong. Reason and common sense, as well as the life of the spirit, seem to be in danger of being crushed between the upper and the lower millstones of materialism, so-called, and of material liberalism, so-called."

It was on this basis Mr. Vanderbilt made his appeal for courses in the study of public law and government, of liberty and freedom in the law schools of the United States and Canada. He admitted such studies would set an extra burden on the already heavy studies of law students, but he declared "the need thereof is inescapable."

What more practical contribution can the profession make in a real sense, work toward the preservation of the democratic process of government? Whose duty is it to perfect the processes of law-making in the courts, in our administrations, in our tribunals and in our legislatures?" he asked.

"What more practical contribution can the profession make in a real sense, work toward the preservation of the democratic process of government? Whose duty is it to perfect the processes of law-making in the courts, in our administrations, in our tribunals and in our legislatures?" he asked.

Declaring the establishment and preservation of liberty was the chief concern of the lawyers and of democratic government, Mr. Vanderbilt said:

"Intolerance stalks the globe. The denial of access to the courts, the growth in number and power of administrative tribunals exercising judicial power."

Canadian lawyers, faced with this situation, could best preserve justice of the courts, he said, by instituting progressive improvement in the practical administration of justice and by dedicating themselves anew to the cause of justice as a public service.

Throughout Canada he contended, the practice of appointing judges to royal commissions and to posts as police commissioners was a threat to independence of the judiciary.

In the second instance, he referred to laws passed in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta which, he claimed, denied citizens access to the courts, while he drew on several British Columbia statutes as examples of how he feared administrative tribunals were undermining the power of the courts.

Senator Farris based his objections to judges serving as police commissioners on the grounds that public confidence in the judiciary might be lowered and because such duties would interfere directly with judicial independence.

CITES AN EXAMPLE

He cited the example of a police commission ordering a clean-up of gambling in a city. If a magistrate or judge who was a member of the commission was called upon to try resulting cases, the police chief might complain he had done his part in arresting those responsible for the gambling, but the magistrate had failed to convict them.

Regarding the laws which, he said, defeated the effect of justice by denying access to the courts, he said:

"Enough has happened to put us on our guard in the future. Every lawyer in Canada knows this to be true. I am thinking particularly about the two great central provinces of Ontario and Quebec. I think the lawyers of Canada, and, in particular, the Canadian Bar Association, should take a firm stand for the future that any legislation denying to any man the right to seek justice in the courts is a violation of our ideals of justice, is contrary to the fundamentals of our democracy and is a challenge and a threat to our free institutions. It is our duty to fight this sort of thing to the limit."

The reference did not mention any specific law.

UNDERMINING COURTS

The distinguished Vancouver lawyer listed three types of administrative tribunals which had been given judicial powers, thereby undermining power of the courts.

The first was one where a group of men were given power by a government to carry on inquisitorial proceedings. Under the British Columbia Security Frauds Act, the Attorney-General was given the right to appoint an agent, with all the rights and powers of a court, but none of the limitations, he said.

A second type of tribunal was one in which semi-judicial bodies were given the right to decide between private interests, as under the Farmers' Creditors' Relief Adjustment Act of 1935 in British Columbia.

The third type gives administrative officials the right to decide between the state and the individual, as under the Workmen's Compensation Act of British Columbia.

ADVANCEMENT OF JUSTICE

Senator Farris offered the following suggestions as things that might be done for the advancement of justice in Canada.

To reduce the cost of litigation, he called on lawyers and judges to "trow upon" unnecessary proceedings.

To improve the method of selecting juries he suggested that a committee of a sheriff, an independent barrister and a judge might select panels with a view to obtaining more competent juries for the cases on hand.

Judges' instructions to juries should be reasonably understandable and not directed primarily for the Court of Appeal, as sometimes happened.

Revision of the law of evidence should be made to simplify proof and remove antiquated technicalities of procedure.

THE ROWELL COMMISSION

What hope there is of an agreement being reached between the Dominion and the Provinces in devising amendments to the British North America Act is illustrated by the Premier of Ontario's statement that he will take no part in assisting the Royal Commission on Federal-Provincial Relations. The Royal Commission is a fact-finding body which, after it has ascertained the attitude of the various Provinces, and of different organizations supposed to represent the sentiment of public opinion, will collate the evidence secured, and make recommendations to the Dominion and the Provinces. It is an act of both courtesy and common sense for the Provinces to state their claims. The recommendations that will ensue from these will not be translated into representations to be made by the Dominion to the Imperial Parliament, unless and until there is an agreement to this effect between the Federal Government and the Provinces. Thus no harm can ensue through the Provinces admitting that the present inquiry may tend to clarify the situation. This Premier Hepburn denies. The Government of Alberta has refused to submit its claims to the Royal Commission. It is possible that Quebec may adopt the same course.

Unless there is official evidence secured from all the Provinces, any recommendations to be made by the Royal Commission will be based on insufficient knowledge of what is the desire of the representatives of a considerable section of the population. That means that if Ontario and Alberta persist in their present purpose, they have, to all intents and purposes, wrecked the Rowell Commission. Even now the situation is such that some statement on the subject may well be expected from the Dominion Government, which was the author of the Royal Commission. Is it to persist in a task of which utility will be the outcome? It was argued from the time of the first appointment of the Royal Commission that the better way to reach the end desired would be through Federal-Provincial negotiation, and what has happened endorses this viewpoint. In the long run it is only through such negotiation, and it will be of a protracted character, that any agreement will be reached. The appointment of a Royal Commission was not a matter of putting the cart before the horse; it was a superfluous act for which failure was forecast, and the failure antedates the recommendations.

What is to be the future of the Royal Commission? The Federal Government cannot justify its continuance if the goal it set forth to reach is unattainable by its efforts. It is no fault of the Commission that the purpose it had in view has been rendered abortive. That fact is due to a recalcitrant attitude on the part of certain Provinces, but it is none the less a fact that must be faced. The task ahead is to endeavor to bring about a conciliatory spirit throughout the Dominion in the viewpoint on constitutional matters, and about whatever need exists for amendment to the British North America Act. Seemingly only time and a change in the complexion of some of the Provincial Administrations will accomplish this. In the meantime the Rowell Commission has reached a dead end. It cannot formulate recommendations which would approximate the desire of the country as a whole for any new delimitation of authority as between the Provinces and the Dominion.

POLITICIANS AND RAILWAYS

Canada's Minister of Transport is not hopeful about the railway problem, and yet he is the one, more responsible than any other person, for finding a solution. He has told the Winnipeg Board of Trade that "disappointing financial statements" are in prospect for the transcontinental companies, and this despite the fact that "everything possible has been done to reduce costs without serious deterioration of service." The latter statement needs a great deal of qualification. Everything possible has not been done to reduce costs. There is a duplication of services in scores of areas throughout Canada, without any attempt being made at economies that will reduce such service to the actual needs of the public. Mr. Howe's outlook on the railway problem illustrates that it is viewed by the party he supports as a political matter. He is simply waiting for something to turn up that will justify this attitude, hoping that the economic tide will turn and increase railway revenues.

Canada built railways in anticipation of increased immigration, expanding population and growing trade. Immigration has ceased, or is so negligible as hardly to constitute a factor in the country's development. Population, through natural growth, is not increasing as fast as anticipated. Traffic remains quite inadequate to engage anything like all the railway facilities that have been provided. The situation is not improving if Mr. Howe is to be believed when he says that "disappointing financial statements" for the current year must be expected from the two transcontinental railway companies. There are no developments in sight for at least a decade to come which will translate the Canadian National yearly deficit into a surplus, on the contrary, what the taxpayers are facing is the loss of several hundred million more dollars unless a speedy solution is provided for the railway problem. Despite what Mr. Howe says, little of any real economy is being practised to reduce costs of operation. Nothing is being done to solve the problem as a whole, and it is regrettable to have to admit that the Conservative Party, like the Liberals, has no constructive solution to offer. Statesmanship is receding to what is an obvious duty, namely, that of putting a period to the drain on the pockets of the taxpayers to feed publicly-owned transportation. Nothing to the same extent acts as an incubus on a return to prosperity as the scores of millions taken annually from the people to support political, instead of business, ownership of railways.

NEED FOR REVIEW

So much doubt has been thrown on the various superannuation plans under Provincial control by repeated attacks against the set-up of the teachers' pension fund, the municipal employees' pension fund, and other phases of the general scheme, that the public will require something more than ministerial assurance that these plans will be put in order.

Within the memory of the public from the past are frequent and repeated assurances that all these schemes were sound. Then the provincial section of the plan was "revised," on the ground that it had become actuarially unsound. The revision brought its own difficulties, and some of these remain to be worked out.

Next the teachers' pension plan, believed and represented all along to be self-sustaining, was declared to be actuarially unsound, with provision for some amending legislation at the next session of the Legislature. The Province has contributed $250,000 to that scheme, in annual installments expiring this year. It is apparent now that further contributions will be sought from the public treasury on the plan.

Meanwhile, increased rates of retirement in municipal services are said to have overrode the civic section of the superannuation scheme, with again the declaration that the plan has become actuarially unsound. The services of an actuary are to be engaged to suggest a remedy.

Over and above the dollar balancing in all these plans are the present and future contracts the State has made with the subscribers to meet and match their contributions under one head or another. It is unsettling to beneficiaries, and to impending beneficiaries under the scheme, to learn that their hopes may rest upon an insecure basis, and that the contract implied cannot be carried out.

In the light of so much attack on the existing basis of all three plans, the Province would be wise to clear up the question beyond any shadow of doubt. It is not a question of politics, but of fact.

A THEORY EXPLODED

Military theorists have held, since the airplane became an important instrument of war, that modern conflicts were bound to be brief and decisive because of the destructiveness of aerial bombing. It was believed that the attendant horrors would quickly wreck the morale of the civilian population and force a speedy suit for peace on the part to the sufferers. That thesis has been repudiated largely by the wars in China and Spain. Terrible though the toll of life and limb among defenceless peoples has been, the aerial bombardments of cities in Spain and China have not weakened the morale of the people; if anything the reaction to the ghastly attacks has been greater determination on the part of the civilian population to stand solidly behind the armies in the field.

In Spain, beautiful Madrid has been bombed almost incessantly for two years. Hundreds of persons have been killed and thousands injured, while damage to the fine buildings and treasures of art and architecture cannot be estimated in monetary amounts, yet the great city remains in the hands of its defenders. Several Spanish towns have been literally bombed off the map, but the civil war now is in its third year, and shows no signs of an early termination.

With an overwhelming superiority in the air, Japan has destroyed property and taken lives of civilians on a scale never heretofore approached, yet the Chinese armies are still in the field and show no signs of capitulating. Shanghai has been bombed many times relentlessly and whole sections of the city laid waste. Several other large Chinese cities have had the same experience, but the loss of life and the destruction of property has not shortened, but possibly lengthened the conflict.

"Live dangerously!" cries Signor Mussolini from a balcony. That seems to be the fate of most people who would prefer to be advised to live safely and told how to do it.

Note and Comment

by Sandham Graves

A serious-faced, police-ridden and perpetually athletic Harold Lloyd, pursued by gods three thousand years old and in imminent menace from a more charming but less subtle fate at his elbow, made a hilarious return to Victoria this week in "Professor, Beware!" at the Capitol Theatre. To take it at its entertainment value, it is first rate fun, with a Harold Lloyd who has lost none of his appeal to the general public and whose art may one day find expression in a much higher form than comedy-farce. The story is thin, the action verges on the slap-stick; but Harold, with a grim determination to do even if he dies, plays thoroughly in character and is a show in himself. Phyllis Welch, in the supporting role, adds substantially to the picture. Not to spoil the picture for you, "Professor, Beware!" opens with a flash-back to a scene of about 1000 B.C. in a scene that might have been longer.

Next the teachers' pension plan, believed and represented all along to be self-sustaining, was declared to be actuarially unsound, with provision for some amending legislation at the next session of the Legislature. The Province has contributed $250,000 to that scheme, in annual installments expiring this year. It is apparent now that further contributions will be sought from the public treasury on the plan.

Meanwhile, increased rates of retirement in municipal services are said to have overrode the civic section of the superannuation scheme, with again the declaration that the plan has become actuarially unsound. The services of an actuary are to be engaged to suggest a remedy.

Over and above the dollar balancing in all these plans are the present and future contracts the State has made with the subscribers to meet and match their contributions under one head or another. It is unsettling to beneficiaries, and to impending beneficiaries under the scheme, to learn that their hopes may rest upon an insecure basis, and that the contract implied cannot be carried out.

In the light of so much attack on the existing basis of all three plans, the Province would be wise to clear up the question beyond any shadow of doubt. It is not a question of politics, but of fact.

A THEORY EXPLODED

Military theorists have held, since the airplane became an important instrument of war, that modern conflicts were bound to be brief and decisive because of the destructiveness of aerial bombing. It was believed that the attendant horrors would quickly wreck the morale of the civilian population and force a speedy suit for peace on the part to the sufferers. That thesis has been repudiated largely by the wars in China and Spain. Terrible though the toll of life and limb among defenceless peoples has been, the aerial bombardments of cities in Spain and China have not weakened the morale of the people; if anything the reaction to the ghastly attacks has been greater determination on the part of the civilian population to stand solidly behind the armies in the field.

In Spain, beautiful Madrid has been bombed almost incessantly for two years. Hundreds of persons have been killed and thousands injured, while damage to the fine buildings and treasures of art and architecture cannot be estimated in monetary amounts, yet the great city remains in the hands of its defenders. Several Spanish towns have been literally bombed off the map, but the civil war now is in its third year, and shows no signs of an early termination.

With an overwhelming superiority in the air, Japan has destroyed property and taken lives of civilians on a scale never heretofore approached, yet the Chinese armies are still in the field and show no signs of capitulating. Shanghai has been bombed many times relentlessly and whole sections of the city laid waste. Several other large Chinese cities have had the same experience, but the loss of life and the destruction of property has not shortened, but possibly lengthened the conflict.

"Live dangerously!" cries Signor Mussolini from a balcony. That seems to be the fate of most people who would prefer to be advised to live safely and told how to do it.

Would Curb Use of Scientific Findings In Modern Warfare

British and American Scientists Hope to Modify Frightful Application of New Discoveries To Instruments of Destruction

CAMBRIDGE, England, Aug. 17. (P.)—British and United States scientists plan a joint effort to modify the "frightful" application of scientific discoveries to modern warfare, it was disclosed today.

A guarded announcement of plans to establish a bureau of scientific men to advise on this question was made by Lord Rayleigh in his presidential address before an audience of famous scientists at the opening session of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Concluding his speech on "Science and Warfare," in which he warmly defended science against the indictment of creating frightful instruments of destruction, Lord Rayleigh, chairman of the Government body of the Imperial College of Science, said:

"The world is ready to accept the gifts of science, and to use them for its own purposes. It is difficult to see any sign that it is ready to accept the advice of scientific men as to what those uses should be."

INTERNATIONAL AMITY
"Can we then do nothing? Frankly, I doubt whether we can do much, but there is one thing that may be attempted. The association has under consideration a division for study of the social relations of science which will attempt to bring the steady light of scientific truth to bear on vexed questions. We rejoice to know that our distinguished American visitors are in sympathy with this aim, and we hope that our discussions with them will bear useful, if modest, fruit in promoting international amity."

It was understood that discussions would continue informally during the meeting on formation of an "Anglo-American science axis" and possibly steps to limit the uses of poison gas and bombs in wartime, particularly when directed against civilian populations.

Denying that science deserves blame because of great strides in the developing of death-dealing apparatus, Lord Rayleigh said most discoveries were made with other objects in view than the ones to which they now are put.

Dealing with high-explosives, he held that in the systematic study of carbon compounds it was "inevitable" that the action of nitric acid on substances like benzene, toluene, glycerine, cellulose and others should be tried and that "no one could foresee the result."

The combination of nitric acid and benzene gave nitro-benzene, key to the aniline dye industry. Glycerine and nitric acid in 1846 produced nitro-glycerine, a high-explosive, but the formula remained dormant for seventeen years until Alfred Nobel, founder of the Peace and other prizes that bear his name, discovered that by mixing it with solids, explosives like dynamite could be obtained, which were safe to handle.

Dynamite, Lord Rayleigh continued, was invaluable in such peaceful arts as mining and building railway tunnels.
"Bumping up what we have learned from experience of the past," he said, "I think we may say that the application of fundamental discoveries in science to purposes of war is altogether too remote for it to be possible to control such discoveries at the source."

GOOD WILL CAVALCADE FLIES INTO DAWSON

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 17. (P.)—An aerial good will cavalcade flew from Fairbanks to Dawson, Y.T., today to participate in the forty-second anniversary celebration there of the Klondike gold discovery.
It was August 17, 1896, that George Washington Carmack and his little band of Indians found the first gold at Bonanza Creek. Since then a quarter-billion dollars in gold has been taken from the region.

Another Eve

By JANE DIXON

CHAPTER XVII
The buzzer in the duplex rang incessantly. Eve awakened with a start, sat up in bed. Kitty groaned and swung her feet over the edge of her bed.
"Maybe it's a mistake," Eve offered. "Let's wait for another buzz."
There was less than a second to wait. Eve looked at the alarm clock. "Don't answer, Kitty," she advised. "It's after midnight. The buzzer—Kitty, do you hear that knocking on the door? Why don't you answer it? Is it the bell?"
"Dopes who call this time of night can't find bells," Kitty mumbled. "Listen to that rat-a-tat-tat!"
Kitty padded to the door. "Who's there, please? Why didn't you wait for me to answer the buzzer?"
Eve heard the muffled reply. "It's Phil, Kitty. Phil Carver. I've got to see Eve."

Kitty's voice was acid. "Yes, Mr. Carver. Miss March has retired. Have you ever heard about a day called tomorrow?"
"Never mind the wise-cracks, Miss O'Toole. I've got to see Eve now. This won't wait."
The demand sounded so immediate that Kitty opened the door. Phil's lean face was white, his dark eyes burning.
"Ask Eve not to get up," he ordered. "Help her slip into a dressing gown."
"And to what do we owe this informal visit?" Kitty asked.
Phil grabbed Kitty's wrist, held it so tight she winced.
"Skip it," he said. "We've got to talk, Kit, and talk fast. Get Eve into that dressing gown."

Kitty disappeared into the cubicle of a bedroom. In a moment she called, "All right, Phil."
On the threshold of the shoe-box bedroom, another Eve, this surely, from the one he had known. An Eve with tumbled copper hair against white pillow. An Eve with the flush of returning health on her cheeks and the light of excitement in her eyes. A faded blue wool bathrobe strapped close around her.
"Phil," she drew the covers close, "what on earth has happened?"
Phil sat on the edge of Kitty's cot. "Plenty," he said. "You're just to see there and listen. And Kitty can't hear by me and be quiet until I finish. Is that a bargain?"
"Why—yes," Eve said.
"Shoot, boy," Kitty urged.
"You know I told you when I left here early in the evening that I was covering an assignment. It was a tip to the city desk, straight to the city editor. A front page story, and if the paper wanted it they'd have to send me. It sounded kind of screwy, but good city editors don't miss chances. So the chief gave me the job. It was a good address and might mean something. I went. A woman there is about to break open a big story about a big shot. Her name is Cynthia Brooke."

"Cynthia Brooke?" Eve was off her pillow.
"Then you do know Cynthia Brooke?" Phil slowly rubbed out a cigarette. "Fighting in the dark is something I don't do so well. Guess I'll be getting on to the office."

"Phil, wait, I met Cynthia twice—no I never met her—she talked to me about Jeff—she threatened—Kitty bounded off the bed. "Hey, pal, you never told me," she said. "What's the idea of the big holdout?"
"I didn't hold out," Eve explained, close to tears. "It was just that I was a coward—to let her do that sort of thing. I was ashamed of myself. I wanted to tell you both—I started to tell you when Phil stepped in this evening, but I couldn't let myself down—before you two, who mean so much to me. What's wrong with me, Kitty? Phil? Why can't I—"

Kitty said, "So what, Phil?"
"So the mystery of the stolen letters vanishes, society scribbles and the heart interest department into a sensation."
"Phil, it's not going to be one of those lurid stories, with pictures and letters and every move you make in the limelight."
Phil said, not pulling punches, "You have a rough idea about what might happen. This Cynthia Brooke is no man's fool. No woman's fool either."
"What does this Cynthia person look like?" Kitty asked.
"I see you have the answer, Kit," Phil said. "She's likely to get a jury of men on its ear. Good looking, if you care for that type—I think they call it exotic. About a thousand pounds of pressure to the heart beat."
"So you like Cynthia?" Kitty bailed.

Registers Easy Victory in Berger Cup Cricket Match At Beacon Hill

Victoria cricketers scored an easy victory over the Hudson's Bay, Payne Cup holders, yesterday afternoon in a Berger Cup match played at Beacon Hill Park. Batting first the winners put on 154 runs for seven wickets and declared their innings closed. Hudson's Bay replied with sixty-eight runs.

Scoring fifty-five and sixty-six runs, respectively, Gillespie and Moore paced the Victoria Club to their one-sided triumph, the latter hitting eight fours and two sixes in his five innings.

Oakman was the only batsman to play the bowling confidently for the Bays, and made thirty useful runs in just over forty minutes. Turner was the only other member of the losing side to reach double figures. Ian Macdonald again bowled well and finished with the splendid analysis of five wickets for eighteen runs.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"Dear Mr. Culbertson—Will you kindly illustrate in your column the difference between the following two bidding situations:

(A) South North South North
3 2 7 4 2 8
I am continually running into difficulties whenever as South, I must choose between the two rebids noted. Also, when I am the responder in the two situations, I never am sure just what I should do. Is the four spade rebid in B stronger or weaker than the three spade rebid in A?
"Yours truly,
MRS. J. C. F. Toronto.

The situations that require choice between the two rebids noted above create confusion among experts as well as average players. Let us try to throw light on the matter by analyzing the following hand.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
NORTH

A J 8 4 2
WEST

K 7 3
K 9 7 4 2
EAST
J 10
Q J 8 4 2
K 10 5
A J 10 3

The bidding:
South West North East
1 A Pass 2 Pass
4 A Pass Pass Pass
This bidding is correct. South had an excellent hand to begin with and it was improved decidedly when North's two diamond response was made. It is this latter feature that must be appreciated. If North's response had been two hearts, South's proper rebid would be not four spades but three spades. A two heart response would not justify South in feeling that same in spades was virtually assured. He would have to recognize the danger of losing one, or possibly two, trump tricks and with no assurance of a diamond or club fit, would be unable to count his losers. The diamond response changes this radically. Now, although the spade (trump) situation remains the same,

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

CRUCIAL BALL GAME TONIGHT

Cameron and Longshoremen Clash at Athletic Park—Cardinals Win Title

It's anybody's game. That's how local softball fans figure tonight's fifth and crucial Lower Island play-off, which will be the Cameron Lumber and the Victoria Longshoremen. The fixture will be played at the Royal Athletic Park, commencing at 6:15 o'clock and indications point to the season's attendance record being smashed.

"Iron Man" Ray McLellan, lumbermen's ace hurler, who heaved his clubmates right back into the picture after they dropped the first two games, will be expected to go to the slab tonight. The Auburn-haired flinger, who has been getting his third straight play-off triumph over the steelworkers, and who it is a hard assignment, there are many fans who figure McLellan capable of doing just that.

Manager Jim Lackie, boss of the freight jockers, will have to decide between Bull Tesky, 260-pound twirler, and Ralph Bonner, southpaw ace. Tesky won the initial battle 2-1, and Bonner followed with a 4-3 decision in the second encounter. However, in succeeding games both hurlers went down as losing pitchers. Problematical as the selection appears, the task will probably fall on the shoulders of the portlander.

CARDINALS WIN
Tromping the Adverts, 16-5, for their second straight victory in the women's city and Vancouver Island play-downs, Manager Jack Taylor's Cardinals last night won the coveted laurels. They will meet the Mainland winners for the British Columbia championship.

The triumph was the final episode in another chapter of the history of the snappy Cardinals' team, and their fourteenth of the season. The champions played fifteen games, during their 1938 campaign, winning fourteen and playing to a 13-13 tie with the Adverts in the opening play-off encounter.

Greater experience and better hitting were the deciding factors in last night's game with the Adverts. Beaten by eleven runs, the losers fought valiantly and never gave up trying, and as late as the last frame pushed across one of their five nappers.

D. Woodburn, a member of the Adverts, smashed out a circuit ball in the fifth frame with the cushions empty.

The scores by innings:
Adverts 002 020 1—5
Cardinals 132 141 4—16

Batters: R. Kennedy and M. Harnett, I. Milliken and V. Hannan.

RACING HERE ON SATURDAY

Good Programme of Events Set This Week at Langford Speedway

With Bert Rasmussen and Swede Linköping still busy on other coast circuit tracks this week, local racing drivers led by Bert Sutton are tuning themselves and their cars to fever pitch for the coming Saturday race at Langford Speedway.

The event promises to be one of the best home-town close-ups since auto racing was inaugurated on the Island.

Showing more flash in the last event than he has displayed at any time during his racing career, Victoria's Sutton will head the local contenders against a squad of experienced American track men including Swede Jimmy Syme, Jack Spaulding, Lew McMurtrie and Tommy Lewis. Lewis is making his first appearance on the track this year.

Racer fans who attended the last meet and remember watching Seattle's Jack Spaulding nose Sutton in the money in the main event are promised another battle just as thrilling this Saturday. Sutton, who has shown more in movement during the past season than any other driver in the circuit, will be out there to avenge his defeat or "blow a gasket in the attempt."

But the American driver is not going to subside without a fight. Although the track will be strange to Tommy Lewis, Jack Spaulding and Lew McMurtrie have ironed out the turns by continual practice and should substantially lower their time trial runs as well as offer stiff competition for the home talent.

Fans who were goggle-eyed at the fight Bob Wensley put up to conquer gold and London cap, the notorious No. 25, are promised their treat this Saturday. After Wensley quit in disgust after piloting the car along the guard rail, the sports department received an entry slip again listing the car with general Jack Taylor himself as driver.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME
The musical programme was much enjoyed, the highlight being the beautiful violin solos "Belero" (San Florenzo) and "Mazurka" (Mlynarski), played by Marie Vowles, brilliant twelve-year-old Victoria girl who has already come to the forefront in musical circles. She was accompanied at the piano by her aunt, Miss Vowles. Pupils of Miss Florence Clough took part in a number of attractive dances, Rhoda Leeman in a Mexican solo dance; Kathleen Burns and Theresa Perkins in a bright Mexican number in costume. Theresa Perkins, K. Burns and Rhoda Leeman also taking part in a Hungarian dance in which they were attractive national costumes. "The Blue Danube" solo was danced by Rhoda Leeman and the spectators were enthusiastic in their appreciation.

Miss Bessie Hope, of the Chinese Youth Forum, was popular in her tap number, and pupils of Miss Betty Clair received spontaneous applause for their dance. Those taking part were Iris and Doris Brooks, Dorothea Rowland and Wilma Clifford. Ladies' night dances included tap, toe numbers, a waltz and a clever acrobatic dance, all of which added much to the afternoon's enjoyment.

ENGAGEMENTS

OWENS-WEICH

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Welch, Okanagan Landing, B.C., announce the engagement of their third daughter, Annie Lorna (Nani), to Mr. Frederick Hillis Owens, Port Alberni, B.C., second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. Owens, Nanaimo, B.C.

What Today Means

"LEO"

If August 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 11:15 to 9:15 a.m., from 5:15 to 7:15 p.m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m. Accidents, today, will be largely due to inattention and the taking of foolhardy risks in the endeavor to save time. The reckless disregard of established rules for safety, in the driving of motor impelled vehicles, will also be responsible for a number of people being injured or even constantly in mind the warning: "Safety first. False economy, through 'my wise, pound foolish' policies being in vogue the day will bring to anyone trying to practise them, disappointing results, as well as financial loss. In the early part of the day conserve your energy, for you may have need of it as the day progresses, for there is liable to be a period of business or social activity just before and after sunset, which will be a great mistake to harbor grudges, or to resort to any kind of spiteful method, due to a sense of resentment you might feel. An unfriendly 'in-placate' can only be clarified through the showing of a sincere desire to clear up complications by frankness and a willingness to give as well as to accept, reasonable explanations. It will pay to make an honest endeavor to find a happy solution to any problem. Mr. and Mrs. engaged couples, as well as sweethearts, must make allowance for mistakes if they wish the day to be a happy one.

If a woman and August 18 is your birthday, your foresight may be remarkable, your sense of perception keen and your self-control admirable. If you refuse to regard anything in a pessimistic light and will realize that wrongs are usually always righted, you will come into your full share of happiness and success. Through work of an educational nature, writing, painting, music, or some line of intellectual activity, you may not only make enjoyable regulation, but also bring to mind the motto: "Keep it clear and untroubled waters."

The child born on August 18 has frequently a sensitive disposition, a deeply religious nature and some artistic talent. Environment and training may make an important part to play in this child's future.

If a man and August 18 is your natal day, you should be able to exert a very good influence over those with whom you are "downy" allied. You ought to be very lucky in both love and business. Through promotional, educational, artistic, commercial or legal work you may become not only wealthy, but widely known.

NANAIMO, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Jane Spruiston, who practiced midwifery in the early days, celebrated her ninety-first birthday on Tuesday in good health. She was guest-of-honor at a reception held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Bell, Haliburton Street.

DENTIST GIVES PEAL OF BELLS

Rev. A. R. Merrix, Formerly Of Victoria, Tells About
California Cathedral

A new peal of bells, made in England for Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, will ring out from a tall tower on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay during next year's exposition, by the donor's express request, stated Rev. A. R. Merrix, former Victorian, now living in Oakland, California, who is visiting the city. For nearly ten years, Mr. Merrix was organizing secretary for the new Christ Church Cathedral buildings here.

The donor of the bells is a British-born dentist in San Francisco, over eighty years of age, who has given the proceeds of his annual income, first for the steel-work of the tower, and then for the bells. He hopes to live long enough to add the concrete work which will complete the northwest tower.

SUPPORTS MEMORIALS
Mr. Merrix, who is now rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Oakland, expressed his hope that suitable memorials to Bishop Schofield and Dean Quinlan would soon be added to Christ Church Cathedral, to mark the unique contribution made by these departed officials of the Anglican Church in this city and diocese.

"Few can realize more than I," Mr. Merrix stated, "how much of this extensive building programme was due to the initiative, insight and leadership of Bishop Schofield, supported, always, by the whole-hearted and enthusiastic co-operation of Dean Quinlan. Together with Archdeacon Laycock and J. C. M. Kelih, the architect, there existed among this group of officials a fellowship of frank and sincere minds, which produced the confidence that was so wonderfully backed by the press and the public in Victoria, and throughout Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. I do hope that the same co-operation and support will find expression in the erection of worthy memorials to Bishop Schofield and Dean Quinlan," Mr. Merrix concluded.

SUMMER VACATION
It was in August, 1930, that Mr. Merrix went to Berkeley, California, to continue his studies for the ministry. After serving a year as director of religious education in All Souls Parish, Berkeley, he was appointed to a similar position in the important parish of St. Paul's, Oakland, where he is now rector.

For his Summer vacation, Mr. Merrix went as a delegate to the International Convention of Religious Education at Columbus, Ohio, attended the annual ministers' conference at Union Theological Seminary, New York, and lectured as a member of the faculty at Evergreen Conference, Colorado. He will return to Oakland on Monday.

MANY ADMIRE NEW BUILDING

Informal "At Home" Marks
Opening of Sussex Apartment Hotel Here

City aldermen and officials and representatives of many Victoria organizations, with their wives, were the guests of the Sussex Hotel Company at an "at home" yesterday afternoon to mark the opening of the newly completed Sussex Apartment Hotel.

The gathering was of an informal nature. Prior to and following afternoon tea, the many guests were escorted through the handsome building by representatives of the company, and were shown the attractive apartments, suites, and hotel bedrooms, displaying much interest in the many up-to-date features of the building. The indoor squash courts and gallery also attracted much interest, and the handsome paneling of the gallery, and attractive decorative scheme of the building generally were greatly admired.

On Monday night the company gave an informal get-together in the squash courts for all the contractors and every man who worked on the structure. W. H. Dunbar, managing director of the Sussex Hotel Company, was chairman for the evening.

Patrick Birley, architect for the building, proposed a toast to "the boys" and Mr. Dunbar and J. A. Bennett, of the Royal Trust, also spoke. William A. Loney, contractor for the construction of the building, responded to the toast. During the evening accordion selections were rendered by Jack Pittman.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

THE INVISIBLE EYEGLASSES—CONTACT LENSES

You may be hearing and reading about the new "invisible" eyeglasses or contact lenses as they are called. Perhaps you dislike wearing glasses with rims because you lose them at times, they get in the way, are dangerous when playing any game, or because they "spoil" your appearance. You may therefore get the idea that you would like to try these "contact" lenses.

They are called contact lenses because the outer portion rests upon or is in contact with the white part of the eye, the cornea. The centre of lens part is made up of transparent glass ground to suit or fit your particular type of defective eyesight—short-sightedness, long-sightedness, astigmatism, rays of light do not reach a single point, myopia (eyes moving from side to side), and aphakia (no lens whatever in eye).

Before purchasing the contact glasses you should have your physician refer you to one possessing the knowledge of your requirements and skilled in the fitting of these particular glasses.

Dr. Alexander G. Powell, Philadelphia, in the Pennsylvania Medical Journal, states:
"Contact glasses must rest on the sclera (eyeball) in such a manner that no pressure is produced. When too tight the eyeball becomes inflamed and there is a firm of tears (epiphora). If the fit is too loose the salt solution with which the lens has been fluid before placing it in, the eye leaks out and bubbles form interfering with vision. The centre of cornea, part must not rest on the centre of the eyeball."

The length of time that contact glasses can be worn varies with different individuals; some can wear them for only three hours, others as long as eight hours at a time.
The actual fitting of contact glasses requires time, patience and experience. All patients should be first tested by the usual method. The head is bent forward and the shell is grasped by a small rubber suction bulb and filled with salt solution. The lids are separated by thumb and forefinger of the left hand and shell inserted first beneath lower lid and then the upper lid. The bulb is then removed by releasing pressure. The patient soon learns how to do this.

A great disadvantage at the present time as Dr. Powell points out is the price. Each lens is priced at $10 to $20 depending on the correction and the type.

How It Started
"TETOTALER"
Epitaph on tombstone at Preston, England:
"Research this stone are deposited the remains of Richard Turner, who died at the age of 70, on the 10th of August, 1937, his association with spirits, now pled to the abundance of all intoxicating liquors."

Turner was one of the ardent temperance reformers of the first half of the nineteenth century. He is generally credited with having first used teetotal in a speech before the Total Abstinence Society, at Preston, England, in 1832.
Turner was not the creator of the term. Long before his time, it was common in Ireland, where it was used to emphasize the idea of total abstinence from spirits, now ever, not attaching till his advent. Through one of those peculiar quirks to which the language is constantly heir, teetotal was rendered into French as totaliter du the as generally credited with having first used teetotal in a speech before the order of things seriously undermined the belief that the French phrase was the parent of the English.

"Tetotaler," 1838, by Rev. Brodhead, Inc.
Estimates of the Swedish Merchant Marjorie last year were $91,200,000 a gain of 21 per cent over 1936.

St. Louis Browns Trim Cleveland; Pirates Triumph

Cellar Occupants Score 10-7 Victory Over Second-Place Club in American League—Pittsburgh Protects Lead by Winning From Cardinals—Giants Defeat Brooklyn, 4-2

The St. Louis Browns knocked three Cleveland pitchers around for sixteen hits yesterday, with Beau Belk contributing four and came out on top 10-7.

The Browns jumped on Johnny Allen, trying for his fourteenth victory of the season with nine hits in the first five innings, and Allen retired to see if Al Miller and Willis Hudlin could keep him from going into the records as the losing pitcher. They couldn't.

Earl Averill tried to put the Indians back in the running with his thirteenth home run of the season.

The Red Sox broke up a six-game losing slump with twenty-one hits and a double victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-3, and 5-0. Jimmy Fox hit his thirty-second homer in the opener.

The Detroit Tigers captured both ends of a double-header with the Chicago White Sox, taking the opener 4-3, and the nightcap 3-2. Tommy Bridges limited the Sox to six hits as he bested Ted Lyons in a mound duel in the opener.

The National League-leading Pirates shook off a spell of bad luck at the last minute today to protect their five-game lead over the Giants with a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

WARRIORS STAR

It was the "piston" boys—Paul and Lloyd Warner—who played the biggest part in the rallies that brought the Pirates' crew through.

Lloyd Warner doubled in the tenth and scored the winning run on Johnny Rizzo's single. "Little Paul" also led the two-run rally in the sixth with a double. Paul Warner drove him in with a mighty triple and then "Big Paul" scored on Johnny Rizzo's long fly.

The Giants bunched three hits in a sixth-inning surge today to score three runs, whip the Brooklyn Dodgers 4-2 and even the current series.

George Myatt, playing his second game in the major leagues since being brought up from Jersey City, hit a homer and two singles, walked once and stole a base.

Doing all their sewing in the third and fourth innings, Cincinnati mixed Harry Gratz's thirteenth homer and eleven other hits with a pair of Chicago errors to defeat the Cubs, 8-4, and take three place away from Gabe Hartnett's charges.

Ira Hutchinson out-pitched Max Bauser, of the Phillies to gain a 3-0 shutout for the Boston Bees. The game was called at the end of the eighth because of rain and darkness.

Hutchinson yielded only six hits, three of them by Buck Jordan.

COAST LEAGUE

Rookie Freddie Hutchinson got what the veterans usually try to get during a whole season of baseball—twenty pitching victories.

Nineteen-year-old "Hutch" hung up No. 20 in his first season of professional baseball Wednesday night at Seattle, shutting out the second-place Sacramento Solons, 9-0.

What he did in addition was strike out twelve batters. Walk only one. Allow only three hits. Retire Sacramento one, two, three in the eighth, making one strike. Drive in a run in the second inning with a single. Drive in two mates ahead of him with a home run over the rightfield fence in the fourth, singled and later scored in the eighth.

Elsewhere in the league Rain forced postponement of the Portland-San Francisco game.

At Los Angeles, Ed Carnett pitched a three-hitter as the Angels dosed San Diego, 4-1. Carnett didn't pass a man and for one exception no man reached third base.

In Oakland, the Oaks and Hollywood collected ten hits each, but the Stars capitalized on four Oakland errors to win, 7-4.

Colorful Field to Tee Off in Canadian Golf Tournament at Toronto

TORONTO, Aug. 17 (P)—Preliminary firing ceased tonight at dusk over wind-swept Mississauga with its par of 72 established as something to worry about by the 150-odd professionals and amateurs who set out tomorrow in the three-day seventy-two-hole Canadian open golf championship.

Solaced by heavy overnight rains that slowed down sunbaked fairways, the 6,740 yards layout was a test of accuracy today that even such deadly iron players as Paul Runyan, United States professional champion, and Tony Manero, former United States open champion, could not approach par.

Gunning for his second national title in 1938, Runyan has been on the scene since Monday, throwing burlesque and eagles into the faces of his tournament mates. But that was in calm weather. The star from White Plains, N.Y., scrambled to get 73 in the gust.

Should unsettled weather continue, predictions were the new champion would not need to beat 280 for seventy-two holes to take down the Seagram Trophy on Saturday night. Harry Cooper, defending champion, thought the winning score might be as high as 284.

Chief among Cooper's rivals were Sam Snead, the West Virginia slugger and the dapper Runyan, whose accuracy and short iron is expected to count heavily on Mississauga's well-trapped holes.

Other favorites included Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware; Pat Jimmy Hines, of New York; Horton Smith, of Chicago; and Lawson Little, of San Francisco, 1936 champion. Ralph Guldahl, United States open king and runner-up to Cooper last year in the Canadian open, is not here.

Canadian favorites were: Jack Hunk of Kent Quebec; Bobby Alston and Stanley Horne of Ottawa; Dick Borthwick, Bob Gray, Lee Robson and Willie Lamb, of Toronto.

Leaders of the Seniors

Pictured above is J. H. Bloedel, well-known Seattle lumberman, and J. E. Wilson, past-president and newly-elected head of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association, respectively. Bloedel on the left, guided the association through another successful year and was replaced yesterday by Mr. Wilson at the annual meeting held in the Colwood clubhouse. The veteran Victorian did not play in the meet this year but in the past has won the grand championship on two occasions.

Squads Selected For Golf Match Scheduled Today

TEAMS for today's international match for possession of the Nichol Cup were announced yesterday by the respective captains attending the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association tournament at the Colwood Club. Jack Dempsey, of Tacoma skipper of the American squad, and J. E. Golding, Victoria boss of the Canadian side, have lined up formidable teams and both were confident of victory yesterday on the eve of the battle. The United

TIME OUT! By Chet Smith

LIFE'S LIKE THAT - By Fred Neher

Jane Dixon Says:

TO THE YOUNGER GENERATION—IF YOU HAVE A CHANCE TO GO BACK TO COLLEGE BY ALL MEANS TAKE IT

A bundle of letters, asking, "Shall I go back to college, or—?" The youngsters are beginning to strain at the leash of life and wonder if all this regimented learning isn't a lot of apple sauce cooked up by their elders to keep them from coming into their own until they are oldsters with long white beards.

The answer is, go back to college, and be thankful for the chance.

Jane Dixon: I have two more years in college, then I was going to take up medicine. I still want to be a physician, but when I think of all the years it takes to be one, I wonder if there isn't some shorter cut to success that would do just as well. What do you think?—Embryo.

You might find a short cut to success, but if you did it would be an accident, so I wouldn't depend upon it. Medicine is a noble profession. Those years of preparation that seem so endless to you now, you check off a day at a time, and the farther you get into your work the faster the days will fly. Be a physician and make up your mind you will be one of the best!

Dear Miss Dixon: Shall I go back to college or shall I marry? I've always been crazy about campus life and have made unusually good grades. It never occurred to me I wouldn't keep after my diploma until this summer. Now I have to choose between college and a most eligible bachelor, one most any girl would snap up just like that! I'm not in love with him, but I like him a lot and maybe it is the chance of a lifetime. Which?—Quandry.

When you marry a man you "like a lot," but "do not love," you certainly are taking the chance of a lifetime, and believe me, my dear, none but a mighty reckless gambler would take it. Better go back to the campus and take careful consideration of college versus marriage. If the bachelor is as eligible as you believe him to be, he will wait for a decision based on sincere affection with no question mark.

Miss Dixon—I won a contest that paid me a nice sum of money. I can use it to go to college—as far as it will take me—which I have always wanted to do, or I can put the money in the bank and let it draw interest. Which would you do?—Lucky Beth.

Thanks, Beth, for asking me such an easy question. I'd go to college so fast it would make your head swim. There is not a stock or a bond or a gold certificate in the world that pays as high a rate of interest as does education. An ounce of knowledge in your head is worth a ton of money in the bank.

EXCUSED

The little boy was on his knees in his little nightgown saying his prayers, and his little sister couldn't resist the temptation to tickle the sole of his little feet. He stood it as long as he could, and then said, "Please God, excuse me while I knock the stuffing out of Nellie."

NO ESCAPE

Mr. Grasswater—No meat for me! I never eat anything that costs the life of a living creature. This boiled potato will do.

Mr. Mealed—Very well, but let me warn you that the production of that potato has cost the lives of thousands of potato bugs.

Personalities on stage and screen today. Jack Buchanan, the sensational screen debut of a fascinating Russian singer, Mara Losseff, six thrilling new musical numbers, two intriguing new dances; a gay story of love and laughter, abounding in sparkling repartee, uproarious situations, novel dramatic twists, with a magnificent climax high above the clouds, such are the rare and pleasing ingredients of "The Sky's the Limit," which will open today at the Plaza Theatre.

CAPITOL Harold Lloyd returns to the screen, after an absence of over a year and a half, in a mirth-provoking laughter entitled "Professor Beware," a film that will close today at the Capitol Theatre. He has chosen for his story a tale as typically Lloydian as his world-famous glassless "eye-glasses," and as is his custom, presents a charming new leading lady, Phyllis Welch.

WESTERN STORY
SCENIC TRIUMPH

California High Sierras Shown in "Forbidden Valley" Drama at Columbia Theatre

Featuring a magnificent section of the High Sierras of California never before filmed, and presenting a galaxy of Western stars headed by Noah Beery, Jr., Frances Robinson, Fred Kohler, Sr., and Robert Barrat, Universal's "Forbidden Valley" will start today at the Columbia Theatre.

The film dramatizes the problems that confront Ring Hazzard, a sturdy mountain youth, when he is suddenly brought into contact with the maelstrom of civilization, with its loves and hates.

ATLAS Three new songs by songsmiths, Harry Warren and Al Dubin, as well as another for which John Mercer set the words to the Warren music, make their formal debut to the world of song in "Gold Diggers in Paris," which will close today at the Atlas Theatre.

DOMINION "Little Tough Guy" featuring Miss Parish and Robert Wilcox with the "Dead End Kids," and which will close today at the Dominion Theatre, presents a stirring indictment of life in a big city tenement district. Jackie Beal, Peggy Stewart and Marjorie Main have important supporting roles.

Nearly 5,000,000 cases of pineapples and juice were shipped from Hawaii in the first half of this year.
